A Witness to Change

Story about Arminta Baldwin

Arminta Baldwin has taught English for 46 years, completing her 39th year at West Virginia Wesleyan College this past spring. Having taught for almost a third of the college's history, she has a unique perspective on how Wesleyan has grown.

"I've been witness to several changes at Wesleyan," she recalls. "Facilities, faculty, curriculum -- I've seen and played a part in it all."

The professor of English has held many leadership roles, including chair of the English department (15 years) and yearbook advisor (16 years). She has also worked significantly with community council and served on numerous committees to appoint new deans. "Currently I like to focus on my teaching," she says. "It's the most rewarding part for me."

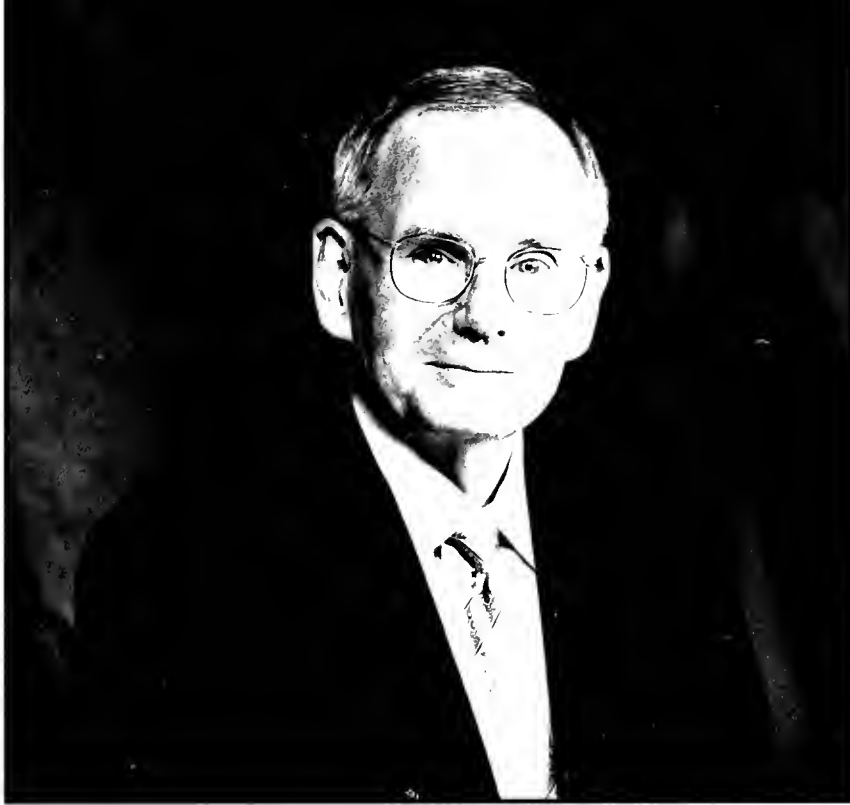

Teaching classes such as Short Fiction, Romantic Literature and Autobiography & Journal Writing, Baldwin lists her favorite course as Images of Women in Literature, a course she designed after surviving her own experience with domestic violence. "I really enjoy exploring social issues through literature," she explains of the class. "I have students keep a journal of the images of women they see in the movies, on television and in other classes. We read texts that deal specifically with women's issues, such as domestic violence and rape, which are often difficult to talk about. I've been really pleased with how the class has grown."

When asked for advice that she might give to an incoming professor, Baldwin replied, "A good professor really listens to his or her students. Learning needs to be interactive. Ideas need to be discussed and not just lectured." Observing students for over four decades, Baldwin believes that they, like society, are becoming more individually oriented with each passing year. "Students are thinking more for themselves and not just accepting of ideas that are presented to them," she observes. "They need to be involved in their own education."

In her free time, Baldwin enjoys reading detective novels and writing essays. She is grateful for e-mail, which has increased her contact with past students. "I really have enjoyed the students over the years," she says. "Those interactions have been invaluable." You can reach Professor Baldwin at Baldwin@wwc.edu.

Oval: Dr. Maya Mei-Tal, criminal justice, and Richard Schmitt, creative writing, converse during a college social gathering.

Dr. McNamara, associate professor of English, loves West Virginia and considers herself as a type of defender of its spirit. "You can see the stars, know your neighbors, and people are frazzled by northern sprawl. I am moved by its culture and I can sympathize with those who don't have employment opportunities and the proper education they deserve," McNamara reflects.

She yearns for opportunities when she can do things for young people in America, and she believes that international experiences are opportunities to grow. "I like the combination of getting out of the hollow, getting on a plane, and going to Greece," she said. Dr. McNamara has directed a number of travel courses to Ireland.

Life isn't slowing down for Dr. McNamara and that's just fine with her. She has formed lasting relationships especially in the English Department with Dr. John Saunders and West Virginia Poet Laureate Dr. Irene McKinney. McNamara also loves her cats. "I used to have 19 puppies. These two female dogs I had just kept getting pregnant. I gave the puppies away to a fraternity and several other places on campus. I'm much more of a cat person." An eternal optimist the professor smiled: "Life is just endlessly good."

Independence

Confidence

Sociability

My freshman year created an overwhelming sense of newness. It was like a different world really. To establish some sense of relativity, I applied for a work study in the Biology Department to care for its animals. One of those days when I was preparing to clean the large saltwater tank, which included taking the fish out of the tank, emptying the water, scraping every fungus covered object, rinsing the gravel, as well as all the fungus covered equipment--you get the picture--Lab Coordinator Mary Miller came into the biology museum and showed me a copy of the Record Delta which had my name in it. Kitzmiller is a long German name and always misspelled. This time it was with an S and Z together. Professor Miller laughed and said that some in the Biology Department called the newspaper "The Wretched Delta." I laughed too. It really made my day.

-- by Seth Kitzmiller

During my sophomore year, I really found a place of solace in the Art Department. I had taken an art class and then felt compelled to take another my sophomore year. I learned that art is a skill that develops in other parts of your life besides drawing or painting or graphic design. You form different perspectives about people, ideas, and concepts. Your focus is narrowed down and disciplined and your eyes are somehow sharper. When you look at a picture or a person you capture things like angles, thoughts, emotions, stereotypes--you can pick up the essence but the mystery still remains. When one becomes a sophomore, one is quieter, more relaxed and one can feel the essence of college life and become familiar with its spirit and attitude. Yet, the mystery remains. You still have two years to go.

-- by Seth Kitzmiller

Like the cast of Saved by the Bell said, "It seems like only yesterday we started." Although I am looking forward to my senior year and the culminating graduation, the past three years have whizzed past. Looking back I remember a great deal of fuss and muss--stress over schoolwork, especially senior thesis. Stress over schoolwork and grades is a given, but it's not what you'll remember once the experience is over. What I remember are late night trips to the Donut Shop and Sheetz, long nights pledging Alpha Gamma Delta, formals--essentially the laughter and the tears. You remember friends.

I think the best thing about being an English writing major at Wesleyan is that there's an aura of respectability and an amount of fulfillment in writing you can't get anywhere else. It's especially prevalent with the English professors. Dr. McNamara has an energetic teaching style that sparks immediate interest in any subject matter from the tedious Iliad to Faulkner's power struggle As I Lay Dying.

My favorite class was Dr. E's American Literature of the Early Tradition. There was just this great camaraderie between all of us in the class and a mutual interest in the subject matter. We read Moby Dick as our novel for the semester. Funny how Ishmael can inspire a whole group of students to run off to Eastern ports and become professional whalers. Big shout out to Queequeg!

Coming Together

We are ready for our future.

Capability

Maturity

Responsibility

After four years of classes and lesson plans, it's all so strange walking into the classroom where all of the students are a fraction of your age. Their impressionable faces all look up to you quite literally. Their faces all look up to you quite literally. Asking a question to a class of miniature boys and girls, your early morning butterflies quickly disappear as ten little arms rise to answer your question. In a brief moment, you smile to yourself because you feel you actually reached the children. When the final bell rings for the day, and you pass the last of your student heading to the buses, making sure to give each one a high-five on your way out of the door, you realize this is exactly where you are supposed to be.

On the way back to campus, you think to yourself, "Wow! Where did the time go?" You can remember freshmen year like it was yesterday. Meeting your roommate, sitting on the wall in the quad, and wondering whose grandma "Grandma" really is. It was hard at first, finding that perfect balance between work and play and to this day some people still have not.

You continue to wonder how you made it this far. You think back to the worst classes you have taken. You thought that professor was the devil and she was out to ruin your life. But then the negativity is replaced by the happiness you get from thinking of your favorite instructor. The one who you were able to distract by talking about her kids or grandkids, or the one who made you laugh so hard that you thought you were going to wet your pants!

As you walk toward your room, the chapel catches your eye. You turn and gaze at the steeple for a moment. You recall the few times you thought about leaving -- going somewhere else. Then your name is hollered from a group of passing friends. You yell back and realize that you were never a number here. You were educated well and will go on to be an excellent teacher or an awesome professional in whatever field you jump into. Your friends walk over to you and you now know that Wesleyan became your second home...your home among the hills.

On Top of the World

I came to Wesleyan in the Fall of 2004, leaving behind what and who I knew for broader horizons, or at least that is what the brochure told me. Looking back, I have no idea how the person who was in the Freshman Olympics became the person who walked at Graduation. Somewhere between Friday night parties, May Term trips, independent studies, and even the occasional class, the Wesleyan experience turned me into a person who I once only dreamed I could become. Wesleyan has afforded me the opportunity to travel across three continents, twelve countries, and thousands of miles. Such a chance has encouraged me to take the road less traveled rather than just read about. From this distinction arises the true benefit of a liberal arts education, the knowledge that the world is ours for the taking, if we have but the courage to step out of our front door. So I depart Wesleyan, once again leaving behind what I think I have learned and who I know, for broader frontiers, or at least that is what the Yearbook tells me...

Seniors on the Road

Whether I made runs to Morgantown or home with friends to New Jersey, braved the weather to Clarksburg at 3 a.m. (just to go to Denny's the night before an exam), traveled with choir tours, visited Audra, the hospital's ER, or Wal-Mart in Elkins (because the one here closes too early), I have wonderful memories. And of course, I had the additional, occasional--almost yearly--run-ins with the police (surprisingly enough, only warnings, no tickets). I can't fail to mention the few breakdowns, flat tires, and duck-taped bumpers. I can't even begin to imagine how my years at Wesleyan would have been different without transportation.

Memories Never Fade

Reflecting on my four years at Wesleyan, I recall many great experiences, everything from joining Greek life to those boring lectures on something not remembered. But the one consistency that intersects and is reflected in my college experiences is the people I met and the friends who were made along the way. Coming in as a freshman in college, I was nervous that I would never find my "niche", but the friends I made in those formative days of orientation and freshman seminar aided in my transition from high school to college life. These people helped to change me into the person I am today. I entered Wesleyan as a timid freshman, but I will leave and walk across that commencement stage as a proud and opinionated man, who is not afraid to speak his mind. Whether I see these people next at their weddings, in graduate school, or even in the far reaches of the globe, I know they will be there in the near future and on down the road. I know that I will always be able to call these people my friends.

Memorial to Sago Miners

The mine explosion happened in January at the Sago Mine, located six miles south of Buckhannon. This tragedy was a disaster to all those who were involved. Twelve lives were lost, one was seriously injured, and fifteen others were injured. The tragedy resulted in very high public recognition and the attention of media, organizations, and the state and federal government.

West Virginia Wesleyan College reacted actively and rapidly. On January 23rd, Wesleyan invited Senator John Rockefeller and Senator Ted Kennedy to meet the families of Sago Miners on campus. On March 28th, Dr. Ken Hechler, former West Virginia Congressman and Secretary of State, was invited to speak about coal safety issues in Hyma Auditorium in the Christopher Hall of Science on campus. On February 23rd, Wesleyan put students to work on mine accident data. On March 1st, West Virginia Wesleyan College announced it would provide full-tuition scholarships to the dependent children of the miners who were in the Sago mine at the time of the accident in January.

"All of us were deeply saddened by the events at Sago," says William R. Haden, president of the College. "We cannot comprehend the challenges each of the families face. The entire Wesleyan campus community clearly wants to help each of the families in providing educational options for the future."

Traditions

Coming Together

ready for our culture

Imprints at Heart

In the presence of our future, our past seems less than ordinary. Yet, we must not forget our roots or those silly little rituals of society that we have so easily learned to discard. Traditions keep the generations alive and vibrant.

At Wesleyan, tradition is about those same principles. Traditions, such as Freshman Orientation, Homecoming, Spring Sing, and Christmas on Campus, are about beginnings, yet they are reminding us of the past. Most importantly, they are reminding us to stay together and enjoy the fellowship and spirit of community.

The Infinite Bond

The thing I most enjoyed about Hair is that it wasn't about egos or who got to sing the most songs. It was about coming together as a community to share, learn, love, and grow. It not only bettered us as individuals, but also bettered us as a department. In today's society, it's so hard to find unity. Once one has found it, it will remain with you always.

My favorite memory is my performing "Let the Sun Shine In". It was amazing seeing the audience rise applauding and matching my exact spirit on stage. I could tell that the show had touched them. Seeing a touched sold-out crowd is simply awe inspiring. It makes me feel I can accomplish anything.

Freshman Orientation

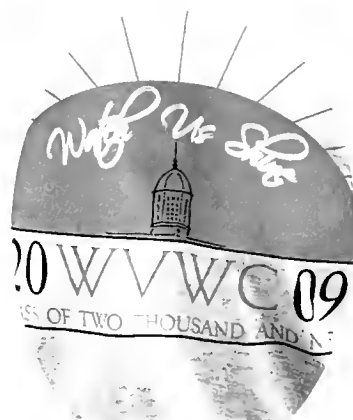

This year's freshman class brought 308 students to Wesleyan's campus. Orientation Weekend began on Saturday August 20th with Freshman Check-in. Later, students met at an informal lunch gathering hosted by President Haden and his wife Elizabeth Flanagan at their home. The weekend commenced with Freshman Seminar meetings in the Chapel oval and a campus picnic on the Annie Pfeiffer Library lawn. The weekend drew to a close with an evening of the Wesleyan Olympics at the Rockefeller Center Gymnasium.

Homecoming 2005

Josh Bennett
King 2005

Through drizzle and certain rain, a procession of floats and students introduced the return of the West Virginia Wesleyan College Homecoming Parade. Students contributed creativity and hard work to make the event a success.

The crowning of homecoming King and Queen at the football field found nominees and faculty carrying umbrellas. Yet, smiles came easily and happy faces warmed the chilled crowd as the ceremony commenced and winners Josh Bennett and Jackie Murphy were announced.

Hair was an experience I will never forget. As the director/choreographer of this earth shattering piece of theater (or at least what was in the late 60's) I remember being filled with trepidation... could we do it? Could we do it? HOW can we do it? In the spirit of HAIR tradition, I tried to really invest myself in the plethora of social, political, religious and personal messages that HAIR represented at the time of its conception.

Once I had to let go of my need to "do" this work, it revealed itself to me through the cast and the material. For many years I had sought out a way to have a truly collaborative process in theatre. The right time, the right place and the right circumstances all fell together and this production took all of us to a very high level of both accomplishment and truthful singing. This cast felt and still feels like family to me; family beyond conventional definition. We have a common understanding that transcends words, and was discovered over an amazing 7-week period sometime in the fall 2005. A year I will never forget.

Spring Sing

Before summer comes spring, a time of beginnings and...warmth! It's also a time to celebrate Spring Sing. This year, seniors Michele McDonagh and Rocky Romano were crowned as Spring Sing queen and king. The theme for the weekend was "I Love the 90's" and several organizations participated by performing musical numbers. The International Student Organization won best performance and best overall in the competition. Alpha Delta Pi in the sorority division earned top honors for best performance while Theta Chi received top honors for best performance in the fraternity division.

Christmas on Campus

Each year Christmas on Campus starts with registration. This year it began in the Green Room and during this time children from various schools and organizations made crafts and participated in other activities. The day concluded with an assembly in the Benedum Campus Center Social Hall where everyone visited with Santa.

December 2005 brought a white winter to Wesleyan's Campus as well as many holiday activities. The Wesleyan's Jazz Ensemble performed big band music in the Chapel under the direction of David Wright, professor of music. Danceworks XI featured a presentation of the Nutcracker Untulled, a new work by Nina Scattaregia and her Modern Dance 1 class. The Festival of Lessons and Carols was held in the chapel followed by a community reception in the Dining Center.

Wesleyan's Rockefeller Center was the home for Wesleyan's 17 intercollegiate varsity sports. Wesleyan athletes competed in the nationally respected and competitive West Virginia Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (WVIAC), which is a member of the NCAA Division II league. Wesleyan's teams recorded significant success with individual athlete and team performances, as well as honors for many of their coaches. Many teams participated in fundraising and volunteer activities to enhance the athletic experience. The women's volleyball team sponsored its first Annual Volleyball Tournament to raise money for its program, and Bobcat football players continued to enjoy visiting local school children with their Bobcats and Books Program. Both individuals and teams pushed themselves to the limits and endeavored to accomplish both their team and personal goals.

Football

West Virginia Wesleyan football finished 2005 with a 3-8 overall record and a 2-6 record in the WVIAC. Several players were named to all-conference squads as voted by the league's head coaches: wide receiver Bryan Overton, quarterback Marc Kimes, running back T. R. Dues, tight end Brad Wilt, and kicker Mike Hibbert. Honorable mention selections included Alex Puente, Ryan Dearman, Domonique Staten, Aaron Hoxie, Ben Vance, and Nick Sworden.

Senior quarterback Marc Kimes ended his Wesleyan career as the school's career leader in passing yards and completions. He also set four individual Bobcat records during his senior campaign. In addition to becoming the first quarterback to pass for over 3,000 yards in a single season, the Parkersburg native accounted for 3,146 yards of total offense and attempted 375 passes in 2005. Earlier in the year Kimes broke Bill Creighton's single-game passing record by throwing for 483 yards in a 39-34 loss at Charleston.

Men's Soccer

Men's soccer ended its regular season play with a 5-10-3 record. The Bobcats finished 7th in the WVIAC tournament.

The 2005 leading scorer for Wesleyan was sophomore forward Kofi Tolbert who netted in a total of four goals for the season. Sophomore midfielder Mark Farrell and senior defender Chris Crews tied for second with three goals apiece. With three assists each, junior midfielder Adam DeClerico and sophomore midfielder Andrew Meikle topped the stats in assists. Freshmen keeper Eric Silbaugh totaled 88 saves for the season.

Junior midfielder Bond Phittayarsi was named to the Men's Soccer First Team All-WVIAC. This was his third consecutive year of receiving the award as he earned first team honors in both 2003 and 2004. This year Phittayarsi was the sole Bobcat player to be slated a spot by the league. During the season, Phittayarsi started for all 18 of the games he played. A leader on the field, he helped control the pace of the game. Phittayarsi served as a crucial link not only between the defense and offense but also between the centerfield and the wings.

Senior defender Brad Mills was recently announced as Wesleyan's male 2005-06 First Community Bank/WVIAC Senior Scholar-Athlete. Mills earned this honor not only through his efforts on the field but also from his work in the classroom as an education major.

Volleyball

Wesleyan Lady Bobcats ended up fourth in WVIAC with 15 wins and 3 losses. Senior middle hitter Michelle Clelland and senior right side Kaitlyn Shumate were both selected to the First Team All-WVIAC for the second year in a row. Kaitlyn Shumate was also named to the 2005 Daktronics Great Lakes Region second team for volleyball. She was the only player from the WVIAC to be awarded such an honor.

April DeCoste has been named the interim head coach for the Wesleyan volleyball program. She fills the void of the previous head coach, Carla Decker, who left to take an opportunity at Lander University.

Decker leaves with an overall WVIAC record of 31-5. In 2004, she debuted as the head coach for the Lady 'Cats. That year, Decker guided her team to a second place conference finish. As well as being the volleyball head coach for Wesleyan, Decker was also the Senior Women's Administrator and served as a faculty member of the Student Athlete Advisory Committee.

Men's Basketball

The Wesleyan men's basketball program went into the 2005-06 season after losing the four top scorers and the four top rebounders from the 2004-05 campaign to graduation. Additionally, the Cats' schedule featured several NCAA Division II top twenty non league opponents that were ranked regionally at one point in the season (UP Johnstown, Ashland OH, Millersville PA & Edinboro PA) along with Eastern Kentucky (2005 NCAA Div. I post season tournament team). These two factors and a schedule that had 11 of the first 12 games being played outside of the Rockefeller Center created issues that were hard for a young squad to overcome.

However, by the middle of February the men's basketball team had settled on a rotation that began to play better and experience some success. Wesleyan concluded the season with five wins in the final eight games of the season. The successful encounters included WVIAC Tournament victories over Concord (72-70) and nationally ranked Wheeling Jesuit (79-74) before falling to Salem International in the conference tournament semi-finals.

Several highlights were recorded for the overall season. The Bobcat men advanced to the WVIAC tournament semi-finals with wins over Concord (72-70) and Wheeling Jesuit (79-74). Cole Ellis was named to the 2006 WVIAC All Tournament Team. Rocky Manchin received the George Springer Sportsmanship Award. Dureyea Garnett ranked 2nd in the WVIAC in steals at 2.6 per game and finished 18th in the final NCAA Div II rankings in steals per game. The team ranked 2nd in WVIAC Team Steal per game -- 10.9 spg and 7th in the Nation NCAA Div II in steals per game.

Women's Basketball

Wesleyan's women's basketball team endured a tough non-conference road schedule posting a 9-9 WVIAC record and finishing 7th in the league. The Lady Cats' overall record was 11-18.

This young squad (seven freshman players) played its best basketball in January and February, beating NCAA tournament team West Liberty and giving NCAA Elite Eight participant Charleston its closest contest in the WVIAC Tournament.

Seniors Julie Bell and Sarah Martin provided excellent leadership, while junior Sarah Grab was voted to the WVIAC All-Conference First Team. Freshman Sarah Van Horn was selected to the All-Freshman Team and earned All-WVIAC Tournament honors.

This team made great strides and the experience the Lady Cats gained will make them a team to watch out for in the future.

Baseball

Wesleyan finished fifth in the southern division of WVIAC with 9-11-1 (Win-Loss-Tie). Senior Justin Rozich and junior Eric Stettmisch were named to the All-WVIAC second team by the league's head coaches. Justin Rozich was named to the National Collegiate Baseball Writers Association All-North Atlantic Region second team. Second baseman Rozich was the only member of Wesleyan's baseball team to make all-region.

In the game against University of Pitt-Johnstown - DH, Bobcats' victory gave their head coach Randy Tenney his 500th career win. Coach Tenney is now 500-290-6 in his more than 19 seasons at Wesleyan since he began his tenure in 1986.

Softball

Wesleyan softball claimed the WVIAC regular season championship title for the 13th time in the past 15 years with a 44-24 record. It also won the WVIAC post-season tournament title and a game in the NCAA Division II Great Lake Region Tournament. Coach Steve Warner was awarded WVIAC Coach of the Year for the tenth time during his Wesleyan career. Heather Hall and Sarah Baise both made the All-Great Lakes Region first-team. Athletic Training

The 2005-2006 year was an excellent one for the Athletic Training Education Program at West Virginia Wesleyan College. The program enjoyed two wonderful additions to its full-time staff in Drue Stapleton, M.Ed., ATC, CSCS and Brian Potter MS, ATC, EMT. In addition, its seniors took seven out of eight spots at the annual state athletic training conference for their senior research presentations. As always, the students in the athletic training program sacrificed time and energy to provide medical care for 17 WVWC varsity sports. Students worked along side full-time certified athletic training staff and faculty in the emergency and rehabilitative setting as part of their 800 clinical hour requirement for the major. Seniors were accepted to graduate schools including James Madison University, Ohio University, West Virginia University, and George Washington University. The spring semester brought a welcomed surprise for students and staff with a trip to UPMC Sports Medicine in Pittsburgh where they were able to see and spend time in the Superbowl Champion Pittsburgh Steelers' athletic training, weight training, and locker room facilities. Two current Steelers introduced themselves while there and made the day magical for all. The staff looked forward to welcoming its newly accepted sophomores in fall of 2006 to begin the program!

Track and Field

Wesleyan's men pulled a comeback for the ages to gain their third consecutive WVIAC title. Junior Rico Greenhowe was named Track Athlete of the Year, and he earned the individual title in the 400-meter dash. The 4X100 relay team of Leonard McLean, Rico Greenhowe, Philip McElfresh, and Jason Koon rolled to victory, and senior captain Andy Shingle defended his triple jump title. Junior Chad Jordan captured the title in the 110-hurdles.

Several men's records fell during the season. Greenhowe set the 400-record both indoors and outdoors and also set the indoor 200. Sophomore thrower Tyler Blatchley set both the indoor and outdoor shot put records. Freshman Pat Reagan set the 10,000-record, and Jimmy Kavaliauskas set the indoor mile record. Sophomore John Adam Romeo matched teammate Sloan Baisden's record for the indoor 55-meter dash.

Wesleyan's women rolled to their 14th WVIAC title in last 16 years and their fourth title in a row. It was an impressive finish to an amazing run for a very special senior class. Senior Stephanie Hatfield won the 3,000 and 10,000 meter runs, and qualified for nationals in the 10,000. She closed her career with school records in the outdoor 5,000 and 10,000 and the indoor 3,000 and 5,000. Senior teammate Leah Erenrich won the steeplechase and 5,000, setting the school record in the steeple.

Other individual winners included sophomore Lindsey Elkins who ran away with the 400-hurdle title and freshmen Sarah Van Horn who captured both the high hurdle and heptathlon titles. Van Horn was also the team's top scorer with 30 points and was named the league's Rookie of the Year. Besides the records set by Hatfield and Erenrich, the 4X400 relay team of Danielle Painter, Brandi Johns, Tiffany Riley, and Elkins set the indoor record.

Cross Country

Wesleyan's women's cross country team rolled to its 10th WVIAC title in 11 years, defeating runner-up Alderson-Broadus by only two points. The tight battle was led by the senior trio of Stephanie Hatfield, Missy Spangler, and Leah Erenrich, as that unit placed 2nd, 3rd, and 5th respectively. Additional varsity runners on the title team included Danielle Painter, Amanda Griffith, Erin Price, Allison Teter, Hanna Jo Robinson, and Stefanie Trifilo. Teter was honored as the league's Rookie-of-the-Year. This women's team is graduating six key athletes who have led the Bobcats to four consecutive titles. This special group includes Stephanie Hatfield, Missy Spangler, Leah Erenrich, Danielle Painter, Annie Schuerger, and Jill Walker.

LaTora Keigley maintains a steady pace.

Wesleyan's young men's cross country team surprised many running fans in the Fall of 2005, finishing 2nd in the 11-team WVIAC field. They did this with running as many as five freshmen in their top seven at times. Freshman Eric Cooper was the team's top finisher, placing third in the championships. Senior Jason Gurney finished fourth, becoming just the third runner in Wesleyan history to earn all-conference honors all four years. Two other rookies made major marks in the season. Jarren Morlan earned all-conference honors placing ninth at the championships. Fellow freshman Patrick Reagan was the team's top runner the following week at the NCAA Regionals in Lock Haven, Pennsylvania.

Money Matters

Now in its seventh year, the Money Matters program created by Wesleyan SIFE students has expanded to include nine classrooms in local schools. They introduced economic principles through lessons, hands-on activities and simulations. They also served as positive role models in telling the students about the college life. The money raised will go to Supporting Education Abroad in Guangzhou, an organization that gives scholarships to students in China for high school.

SIFE members help fifth graders, who participate in Money Matters program, make and sell their picture frames at Marketplace.

West Virginia Wesleyan College's Students in Free Enterprise (SIFE) team placed among the top 40 schools at the recent national tournament in Kansas City. The group, led by Dr. Scott Bellamy, associate professor of economics, and Briana Cicero, assistant to the director of the M.B.A. program, earned a first runner-up spot in competition with seven colleges and universities from across the country. This is the second time Wesleyan has received this honor.

Sorority

Sorority life at Wesleyan was recognized by four chapters: Alpha Delta Pi, Alpha Gamma Delta, Alpha Xi Delta, and Zeta Tau Alpha. Individual sororities participated in fundraising throughout the year to support their favorite charities: Alpha Gamma Delta for juvenile diabetes, Alpha "Delta Pi for Ronald McDonald House in Morgantown, Alpha Xi Delta's Xi Saw for Choose Children, and Zeta Tau Alpha for Susan G. Komen Foundation.

Theta Xi, Theta Chi, Alpha Sigma Phi, and Chi Phi called Wesleyan home by nearly 100 active undergraduate brothers. Though each fraternity is unique in its own way, each chapter played a vital role on campus through its service. Through various campus and Buckhannon community outreach efforts, each fraternity brought both volunteerism and learning to a serious, but many times fun level. Along with the sororities, many fraternities worked together to achieve local success in the most recent Heart Walk and other similar efforts at the Stockert Youth Center. The opportunities provided through these strong brotherhoods are immeasurable. The fraternities continue to play a vital role in keeping Wesleyan a strong and healthy institution.

Murmurmontis Staff

Editor: Delin Sun
Assistant Editor: Seth Kitzmiller
Adviser: Nancy Porter
Photographers: Paul Roncone & Seth Kitzmiller
Staffers: Alicia Buchanan

Volume 95 of West Virginia Wesleyan College's Murmurmontis was printed by Taylor Publishing Company in Dallas, Texas using Elite Vision 5.0 for Windows XP. The 550 copies of the 9x12 yearbook contain 136 pages printed on 80# enamel. The cover is four-color lithocote lamination. The endsheets are blue rainbow. The senior section is the only section printed in four-color. Snooze Bold Italic type font is used on the cover and all the divider pages. Gourmand and Time fonts are also used throughout the book. Portrait and group photos were taken by Dave and Bob Mihalko of Contemporary Studios in Medina, Ohio. The 2006 theme "Coming Together" was created by the 2006 Murmurmontis Board. Dr. Bill Mahoney and staff photographers Paul Roncone and Seth Kitzmiller provided the majority of the candids. Mary Elliott, Rochelle Long, Dave Conley, and Charity Eotes also made their contribution. Digital pictures were used from the college website, several departmental websites and the office of College Relations. Thanks to Bess Park-Reynolds, Zak Ritchie and Caragh Kelley who provided their stories. Thanks to The Record Delta that provided sports photos. Many thanks to Bill Lilly, Steve Tierney, Larry Reed, Vickie Phillips, Mike Berry, Allan Hamner, Joe Weist, John Bohman, Alisa Lively, Joey Tiblets, Miki DeMarry, Jesse Skiles, Jeremy Sibold, Rae Emrick, Carol Means, all the staffs at Academic Advising Office, and others who helped identify people in the pictures. Special thank yous go to Doug and Margaret Richardson, Taylor representatives. The Murmurmontis Staff can be contacted by phone at (304) 473-8482 or by email at murmurmontis@wwvc.edu.
